PR. LEWIS CONTINUES TO BE CONFIDENTIALLY consulted in all cases requiring skill, promputing and experience.

Persons consulting Dr. Lewis may rely upon the most in violable secreas and strictly professional confidence. The difficulty of the professional confidence. The relationship of the property of the convertion that their infirmities would be known, particularly by those with whom they may come frequently in contact, accounts for the endurance of evils which might be completely removed by timely and indicious treatment. It should be remembered that one visit to a medical man, who is qualified and habituated to the tractice, will be the best method of avoid lag future misery. The leading principle of Dr. Lewis system is a speedy and neffect cure, without preventing the patient from attending to his crimary avocations, and hy means whereby the strictest secreey can be secured. In all cases an early application is of the utimest importance, as diseases of his nature, if neglected or mattenated, epselfy successed in many thousands of cases, the patient must result.
